Erises of the Fight.

Hardly anything else was talked about on the streets year-day but the Sullivan-Corbett fight.

The result was a surprise to a majority and a bitter disappointment to many. The found was analyzed. The "life" and "but" were numerous and the "I told you so" man was a conspicuous quantity. The general opinion was that Sullivan was outclassed. Corbett's provess had the Boston man. Many rejoiced at the champion's down-fall, but the decline of greatness is always attended by mora of less sympathy.
